BIOGRAPHY

Milla Brune, also known as Camille De Bruyne, writes songs to tame her inner chaos and find poetry where things tend to overflow.

Her music moves between fragility and strength, carried by a soulful, deeply inhabited voice, giving rise to a hybrid and elegant pop sound.

She explores inner states, mental health, hypersensitivity, mental load (the kind that overheats the brain), self-judgment, and the obsession with perfection. Intimate subjects, approached with gentleness, clarity, and a touch of irony.

Before developing her own artistic universe, Milla Brune toured extensively, lending her voice to international projects ranging from world music to soul and hip-hop. She has notably toured widely with Guru/Jazzmatazz, Zap Mama, Tina Arena, and Baloji. A journey that shaped her artistic identity and refined her musical language.

A 100% DIY artist, she composes, writes and co-writes her songs, designs all her cover artwork in collage, and crafts a singular, handmade visual universe.

Her recently released video Chaos is animated proof of this: a stop-motion film, created entirely by hand, frame by frame, to give shape (almost cute) to the mental load.

Following the album Higher, Milla Brune releases a new four-track EP, Chaos. This new project continues her sensitive exploration, where the intimate becomes collective.

Each song seeks, above all, to strike true — and to hit a little harder as well.
